THINKING GREEN

Now that the new school year has arrived, it's a good time to setup a walking group or carpool schedule. Organizing a school carpool for your children and other families in your neighbourhood can help you save on driving expenses, reduce greenhouse gas emissions and save you much needed time. If you live in walking distance to the school, an organized walking group is another alternative to driving.

Enjoy the economic, environmental and practical benefits associated with carpooling or walking groups while showing your children how they can help the environment and reduce their carbon footprint.
